

BROKER'S RIDE COST $5 A MILE.

The Predicament of Edward Wasserman, and How He Got Out of It.

Making up for lost time.

Mr. Edward Wasserman, the broker, is well known in the financial district as a wide-awake person, but this reputation does not prevail in Jersey.

He took a sleep over there Wednesday night that cost him about $150 in money and no end of inconvenience.

Mr. Wasserman had been to Chicago and was anxious to join his family at Long Branch. He was on the Pennsylvania limited, which reaches Jersey City at 6 o'clock. It was his intention to take the 6.10 on the Jersey Central for Long Branch, the last train out, but he learned in Philadelphia that he would not be able to make it.

The conductor of the train figured a way to allow Mr. Wasserman to get to Long Branch without coming in to Jersey City. In accordance with his plan Mr. Wasserman left the train at the Market street station in Newark, hired a cab, made a wild dash to the Branch street station, and got there just in time to catch the train to Elizabethport, where there was ample time to catch the Jersey Central Long Branch train leaving Jersey City at 6.10.

So satisfied with himself was Mr. Wasserman that he sat down in the station to think it over. The train for Long Branch came in, but he made no move to board it. The train pulled out, and just as the last coach disappeared around the curve the broker woke up.

What he said would not look well in the columns of a great family newspaper. There were no more trains to Long Branch, and the alternative of going to New York for the night of hiring a special train presented itself. He concluded to hire the special train.

He rode to Elizabeth on the branch line and wired to the Pennsylvania officials in Jersey City asking the cost of a special. The reply was that he could have a train all to himself for $100.

"Bring on your train," said Mr. Wasserman, "and pick me up at Elizabeth." While waiting for the train he bought real wine for many wondering citizens of Elizabeth, proclaiming to them that he had made large sums of money in Chicago and that nothing was too good for him.

The special put him in Hollywood station, Long Branch, at 3.25, at ten minutes later he was in the bosom of his family. His thirty-five mile ride on the special had cost him near $5 a mile, counting in what he had expended in molesting the Elizabeth thirst.

MRS. MUIR ASKS FOR JURY TRIAL

Contest Over Will of Senator McPherson's Widow.

The contest of the will of the widow of Senator John R. McPherson came up in the Hudson County Orphans' Court in Jersey City to-day before Judge John A. Blair upon an application by Mrs. Muir, a daughter, to have the case transferred to the Circuit Court. Mrs. Muir wants a jury trial.

Counsel also handed up an order asking in Mrs. Muir's behalf for the appointment of Judge Otto Crouse as temporary administrator in conjunction with Aaron Baldwin, administrator under Mrs. McPherson's will. Mrs. Muir thinks her interests have not been conserved by Mr. Baldwin.

Opposing counsel asked for time to examine the petitions, and the Court adjourned action for a week, when he will listen to arguments.

A SYMPHONY OF PRISONERS.

Drum, Corps and Music Were Lacking in Harmony.

Clerk Ed Cowling, in Part I. of General Sessions, this morning called three men to the bar of justice.

"Philip Drum, Edward Corps, Adam Music," he exclaimed.

Three men, one tall, one short and the other of medium size, walked to the front.

Drum and Corps pleaded guilty to assault in the second degree. They had assaulted Charles Schmidt, of No. 881 East One Hundred and Sixty-first street, at Third avenue and Twelfth street.

Judge Cowling sentenced the pair until Wednesday for remand.

"What about Music, now?" ejaculated the Judge. "We've disposed of the drum corps."

Music attempted on May 13 to kill his wife, Barbara, at their home, No. 205 East One Hundredth street, by shooting her. He fired four shots into her body.

"Apparently there was no harmony in your domestic relations," Judge Cowling commented, as he sentenced Music to Sing Sing Prison for six years.

CHANCELLOR MACCRACKEN REFERS TO HER IN HIS ANNUAL ADDRESS.

In Chancellor MacCracken's address to the graduating class of the New York University in the Metropolitan Opera House last night he paid a tribute to "an anonymous friend," who recently made a substantial contribution, that he said will enable the work of the University to be carried on in the future on even a more liberal scale than in the past.

The hearers believed that he referred to Miss Helen Gould, who has always shown great interest in the University, where her brother Frank was graduated.

After referring to the recent dissections in the faculty of the University's School of Pedagogy, Dr. MacCracken said:

"The University has devolved the duty of the deanship of the faculty of pedagogy for the next college year upon the Chancellor of the University.

"The suggestion that the Chancellor shall for some time devote himself largely to pedagogy originated with a member of the Women's Advisory Committee."

The Great Clothing Sale

at the Big Store Continues To-Morrow with Unabated Vigor.

Fame follows merit wherever it goes! And in the wake of this sale of unquestioned merit there came a clothing business that surprised even us—and we have had some pretty large and successful sales in the past!

Some merchants will no doubt say, Where's the trick? Why shouldn't they have a big sale when they lose a fortune on the goods they sell? But that's our affair! When we want music we are willing to pay the piper—and when, for reasons of our own, we want a big clothing sale in the month of June—the month that's supposed to be a dull month in the clothing trade—we accept our losses cheerfully.

We know just exactly what we are about, and if you can say the same for yourself, you will be here promptly to take advantage of clothing values that do not often occur at any store.

We can quote within the scope of this announcement but a few of the many values this sale affords for your choosing—enough, however, to make it clear to you that of all times now is the time to buy!
